Consumption Checked
Obstinate Case of Catarrh
Local Applications Failed—Hood's Sarsaparilla Cured.

"C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
"Gentlemen:—I ought to make known my experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla, so that others afflicted may learn where to find a remedy for that serious and obstinate disease, catarrh. It troubled me seriously. I had a dull aching sensation in the top of my head, and the usual discharge from the nose. I became so bad that morning I could do nothing but hawk and spit. My lungs were also being rapidly affected, and I had been using Hood's Sarsaparilla, I would have died."

A Consumptive's Grave
long ago, I have taken about ten bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which have effectively cured me. Before resorting to this medicine, I used all the catarrh remedies, inhalants and local application, I heard of. None seemed to reach the seat of the disease. In fact I grew worse while using them. I owe my cure to the blood purifying powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MISSIE M. KEYSER, Pataksala, Ohio.

WORKING HOME FOR BLIND.
It is Practically Abandoned, No Funds Being Allowed For It.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—The working home for the blind, an institution founded by the state seven years ago and indirectly patronized by the founder, is virtually stricken from the list of the state's eleemosynary institutions. The buildings of the home near Xenia in Morrow county, were recently destroyed by fire and the inmates had narrow escapes, owing to the character of the buildings and the indifferent water facilities. The trustees have asked the emergency board to authorize a deficiency in the general expense fund to rebuild the home, but the board, after three sittings, has refused the appeal.

The home has never been much of a success in a financial way, and is besides handicapped by the cold reception of the citizens of the locality. The board discussed the matter, and adjourned without definite action, but let it be understood that they were opposed to authorizing the deficiency. The trustees sent in a strong protest against re-establishment.

ADLAI STEVENSON

The Logical Democratic Candidate for President.

SO SAYS SENATOR BRICE, AND HE IS A GOOD POLITICAL JUDGE.

Mr. Stevenson Popular in all Sections, and Can Carry Illinois in 1896.

New York, November 14.—United States Senator Brice was asked to-day about the report that the Democrats were laying their wire to capture the two Senators from North Carolina.

Senator Brice said: "I cannot tell what the steering committee have in view. We have not had a meeting as yet, and hence nothing definite has been determined upon. I don't think we shall have a full committee meeting much before congress opens."

Regarding the chances of the defeat of the Democrats at the polls last week, Senator Brice had this to say:

"The Democratic party was defeated by the barest of margins. The question was not so much a tariff issue as a great many people are led to think. The people all over the country expected that the party in power would bring better times, and when these did not materialize they turned their ballots against them. The same cause defeated Harrison two years ago. When prosperity languishes, the people blame the party in power as the cause of it, or at least as being able to restore the normal condition of affairs. But I think that things will brighten up so that we will have a decidedly split Presidential contest."

"Who do you think will be the next presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket, and will Cleveland run for a third term?"

"The next Democratic candidate to run for the presidency will be Adlai E. Stevenson. He will have the support of all the factions of his party. He is the logical candidate, and he comes from a state that can be carried by the Democrats with his name leading the presidential ticket. He is the best man we can take, and I don't think that the party would make a mistake. The election last Tuesday settled the fate of several prospective candidates, and I am more and more convinced now that Adlai Stevenson is a third man, as for Cleveland running for a third term, all that kind of talk is twaddle."

We are requested to publish the following, which refers to the death of a brother of Mr. John Zollars of this county: The death occurred on Oct. 27, 1894.

At 5:45 on this morning, as the gray light of the approaching day first flickered across the eastern horizon, another landmark was removed from our city and the spirit of John Zollars took his flight across the dark river, and his life went out as peaceful and serene as the dawning of the day.

He deceased was only a few days short of eighty-four years of age, the past fifteen of which have been spent in our city. Before becoming a citizen, he showed his faith in our country and its institutions. He was a first brick building in Creston, which is still known as "Zollars' block," located on the corner of Pine and Montgomery streets, and which he had built in 1870. His name, John Zollars, will be "green" in the memory of our people, for it was he who nourished and gave strength to our city when it was in its infancy and to him the city owes a debt of gratitude that death does not remove.

The colonial possessed one of those happy dispositions that made all with whom he came in contact happy. He had a hearty hand-shake and a kind word for all, and few are they who would be more missed. But he lived to a ripe old age and the grave was ready for the reaper. Twelve years ago he celebrated his golden wedding and for sixty-two years has traveled life's rugged road with her who he now rests in.

He left four daughters to mourn the loss of a father ever kind and indulgent. Mrs. Isaac Shriver, of Orrville; Mrs. Fred Allen, of Spokane, Washington; Mrs. J. C. Woodruff and Mrs. T. J. Davis, of our city.

Col. Zollars was born in Washington county, Pennsylvania, November 17, 1810. In early manhood he made a competency in railroad contracting in Indiana, and returned to his native state, Wayne, Indiana, in 1840. He was a broad-gauged, liberal man of sterling integrity, had a good word for all men, passing away, leaves not an enemy behind.

A Blind Law.
The late Legislature of Ohio passed an act that it is safe to say, is not known to one person in a thousand residents of the State, and therefore bound to take notice of it at their peril. It provides that in case of an infant's eyes becoming inflamed or swollen, or showing any unnatural discharge within ten days after its birth, it shall be the duty of the "midwife, nurse, or other relative having charge of such infant, to report, in writing, within six hours, to the physician in attendance upon the family," or in his absence, to the health officer, and in his absence or where there is no such officer, to some legally qualified practitioner of medicine, the fact of such optical ailment.

Failure to do so subjects the offender to a fine of not less than $5.00 or more than $10.00, or imprisonment for not less than 30 days nor more than six months, or both fine and imprisonment. The statute is known as "An Act for the Prevention of Blindness in the State of Ohio."

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.
The Meeting to be Held in January Promises to be Interesting.

Health board received information from Columbus stating that the state board of health meets in that city for three days' session on January 24, 25 and 26. The regular session usually occupies but two days, but the third day has been added to allow ample time for the discussion of such questions as may arise from the local boards wish to ask and receive information.

The local boards are requested to send in their questions as soon as possible, so as to give the board ample time to prepare the program and assign the various topics for discussion. The local boards are also instructed to send one or more delegates to the meeting.

The question box is a new feature and will no doubt prove an interesting and most profitable feature to both local and state boards.

The Democratic Overturn.

(Philadelphia Record.)

A schoolboy who was asked to define "responsibility" said if he had only two buttons on his trousers and one came off all the responsibility would rest on the other button. This was not a bad definition, and it affords a very accurate idea of the popular apprehension of party responsibility. The party in power is held to account for everything that results through the default of the party out of power, and it nearly always happens for this reason that the political success are followed by reverses. The Democrats came into power in 1893 just on the eve of an industrial and financial revolution, for which previous bad industrial and financial legislation was almost wholly responsible. The people have put the blame for the depression not on the failure of the button that came off, but on the other button.

The times have begun to mend as a result of Democratic corrective legislation, but the change for the better was not quick enough to prevent Republican success. Twenty years ago after the panic of 1873 there was a succession of Democratic victories precisely as the panic of 1893 has bred Republican victories, but with this difference, that there was no question in 1873 as to where the whole blame should properly rest. In this habitual swinging back and forth of the political pendulum is the only consolation Democrats can find in the results of yesterday's elections. The Republican sweep of 1894 is nearly an equivalent for the Democratic sweep of 1892. Honors are therefore even.

Whatever have been the causes of Democratic defeat it is a matter of congratulation that there will be a decisive Republican majority in the house of representatives. The power of initiative in that body brings with it grave responsibilities, which cannot be shifted as they might have been had the populists obtained members enough to hold the balance of power. The position of the Republicans will be one of harmlessness and ineffectiveness. They cannot change the tariff as it stands. They are committed at any rate against further tariff agitation. Their victory is therefore a bootless one. It is not until 1896 that a decisive battle can be fought. By that time all the conditions will be favorable for sober decision.
